MIAMI CITY

THE PEARL OF THE ATLANTIC

Miami is a port city located in southeastern Florida, United States, around the Miami River, between the Everglades and the Atlantic Ocean. It is the seat of Miami-Dade County, and therefore, the main, most central and most populous city in the Miami Metropolitan area. It was founded on July 28, 1896 and according to the 2014 census has a population of 417,650; its metropolitan area encompasses more than 5.4 million inhabitants, which makes it the seventh largest in the United States.3 The United Nations has calculated that Miami became the ninth largest metropolitan area in the country, behind New York, Los Angeles, Chicago, Dallas, Houston, Washington DC, Philadelphia, Boston and San Francisco.

It is considered a global city of importance in finance, commerce, media, entertainment, arts and international trade.5 It is the headquarters of numerous central offices of companies, banks and television studios. It is also an international center of popular entertainment in television, music, fashion, cinema and performing arts. The port of Miami is considered the port that hosts the largest volume of cruise ships in the world [citation needed] and is also home to several cruise line companies.6 In addition, the city has the highest concentration of international banks throughout the United States of America.

Museums by the Bay
Miami has long been home to fantastic and fascinating museums, such as The Bass Museum of Art and The Wolfsonian in Miami Beach, but the city has added something spectacular to its cultural scene. Downtown Miami is now the proud home of Museum Park Miami, a sprawling green plaza with perfect views of Bayside. Within this beautiful park are two of the city's most exciting new museums, the Perez Art Museum Miami and the Frost Museum of Science. Perez, or PAMM for short, features nearly 200,000 square feet of artistic wonders, including experimental art. The Frost Museum encompasses six floors of interactive exhibit areas, including the Frost Planetarium and the 60,000-square-foot Gulf Stream Aquarium. You can even get up close and touch some of the sea creatures.
